Parkway Medical Adopts Families for the Holidays!

SCOTTSDALE, ARIZONA- December 4, 2006 – This holiday season Parkway Medical, in Scottsdale, is spreading cheer by adopting three families through the Thomas J. Pappas School in Phoenix. This is the second year the staff will be purchasing gifts for families so they, also, can have a happy and memorable holiday. A wish list from the families is given to the medical staff which directly concentrates on the needs of the children. The lists include clothing, personal hygiene items, gift certificates to stores as well as restaurants, electronics, movie tickets and toys. The Thomas J. Pappas School provides an equal opportunity education as well as enrichment opportunities to curtail homelessness.

On December 18th from 8 am to 2:30 pm., the gifts are distributed to the children. The staff at Thomas J. Pappas introduces all of the donors, such as the staff at Parkway Medical, as Santa's elves that are stationed here in Phoenix making final arrangements for the holidays. In addition, they tell the children the "elves" are checking on their grades, attendance and if they have been naughty or nice.

"It is wonderful when a community can come together to help children in need and put a smile on their faces," states Dr. Blume, Managing Partner of Parkway Medical. "We want to spread awareness of this opportunity, so others may choose to participate in this program."

For more information please call Parkway Medical at 480-348-3200 or Erin Angelini at Thomas J. Pappas School at 602-452-4750.
